1. The large military barracks in Bialogard (Belgard, 055/ML3) are occupied by Russian troops, probably in the strength of a regiment. The barracks consist of five buildings, each about 100 meters long and 25 deep; each building has four floors.
2. About one-third of the houses in the most comfortable section of the town are occupied by Russian officers. The civilian population was evacuated from these residences. The section of the town is fenced in with barbed wire.
3. In conversation it was learned that Russian soldiers are restoring the buildings within the compound and on the training grounds and that they are erecting new buildings.
4. The function and military branch of the Russians are not known. 1
